INFO & ADVICE

Here are a few safety tips for your little ones to ensure a safe stay in the mountains !

The mountains are a giant playground where you can enjoy experiences and create memories as a family.

But it's not without its dangers, and there are a few things you should do to make the most of this environment.

ALTITUDE WITH CHILDREN

Children, and particularly babies, are sensitive to changes in altitude, It is advisable to :

- ride at a very low speed.
- stimulate their swallowing with a dummy, a bottle or a sweet.
- check their reactions and do not hesitate to make «decompression» stops.
- taking the lifts with children below 3 : please check with your doctor.

ENJOY THE SUN WHILE PROTECTING YOURSELF

Children's skin and eyes are sensitive to UV rays, so don't forget :

- sun protection factor 50 every 2 hours minimum
- sunglasses, hat, cap...
- Keep your child well hydrated: bottle, water bottle, wet cloth...

GOOD HABITS TO ADOPT DURING YOUR OUTINGS IN THE MOUNTAINS

- Dress appropriately: high boots, rain gear, warm clothes; the weather changes quickly in the mountains.
- Take enough water and snacks with you.
- Check the weather forecast before you set off on your hike.
- Inform your friends and family or the Tourist Office of your departure and your route.
- Take a map of the paths or an IGN map with you.
- Never set off alone.
- Choose your route according to your level, your physical condition and the weather.
- Do not hesitate to ask for the services of a professional to accompany you.
- Respect nature (do not sleep away from the path or pick flowers) and don't leave your rubbish behind.
